

Braver than all the rest

A mother fights for her son Dave and Sarah Burgess are devastated when their young son Karl is found to have muscular dystrophy. Then another tragedy hits the family hard. But the family are committed to do the best they can for Karl, who has a passion for rugby league. Karl's determination to get the most out of life, despite his disability, inspires those around him, including his hero, Chris Anderton, one of the local rugby league club stars. Based in Castleton, a Yorkshire town near the border with Lancashire, this is the moving and inspiring story of a mother caring and fighting for her son. Philip Howard is a retired teacher who had responsibility for special needs at a sixth form college. He is a lifelong rugby league fan from St Helens, but now lives near Hull. This is his first novel.
