

Day of the Mexican Dog

Day of the Mexican Dog, a long short story (6,000 words) written for teens and young adults, combines wry humor and a compassionate heart in the character of its animal-advocate heroine, Andee Retman, who travels to California during summer vacation to visit her aunt and uncle and embarks on a mystery that will follow her all the way back home to the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania. When they take a shopping trip to Ensenada and encounter a sweet but sick and starving dog, Andee and her aunt resolve to sneak back down the following day and somehow smuggle it across the border. The unlikely rescue takes a peculiar turn when they meet a mysterious woman who appears to know all about their mission. Is there more than meets the eye about this particular dog?
