

Crashes Law: Poems (National Poetry Series)

Through myth, dream and sensuality, these poems portray a world in which the desire for psychic orientation coexists with despair at its absence. The opening poem, Infernal places the speaker in the searing realm of an actual and metaphorical Miami; New Heaven, New Earth, the final poem, set in a bitterly cold woodland, alludes to a predicted blizzard. The collection was the winner of the 1995 US National Poetry Series.
